Since 1941, through our Junior Council, we have been

Keeping Young with Young Canada

John Fraser

Nancy MacKinnon

GLENLAWN COLLEGIATE

The youthful enthusiasm and energy of the 21 Junior Council groups and the 17 Junior Executive groups, (they started in 1946) we have been privileged to work with has kept us very much in touch with the needs and desires of the High School students in Metropolitan Winnipeg. The representatives each year have been of outstanding calibre, and we are particularly proud of the 1962-1963 twenty-six Junior Executives and twenty-nine Junior Councillors, many of whom have achieved academic and other distinctions.

Chosen for high academic standing, personality, and interest and participation in student activities, through practical experience in selling and informative discussion in their weekly meetings, they learn the fundamentals of modern retail business methods and merchandising.

YEARBOOK EDITORIAL

Often you may have heard your parents or grandparents say, "The years I spent in school were the happiest of my life." You may, as I did, tend to be skeptical, but if we stop to think for a moment, the years spent in school offer many opportunities to us that we will never have again.

It is the sincere wish of the Yearbook Staff that, for the graduates, this book will help to bring back many nostalgic memories of their last year at Glenlawn. And, for those who will return, we hope that this yearbook will help them to appreciate that the years they will spend at Glenlawn are years they will always treasure.

Our yearbook should be a source of pride to every Glenlawn student because it is written entirely within the school by the staff. We hope that the yearbook will reflect the robust pride we can all have in this school, in its staff, and in the many activities offered.

Good luck to you all in the future.

Liz Spencer, Editor.

Principal's Message

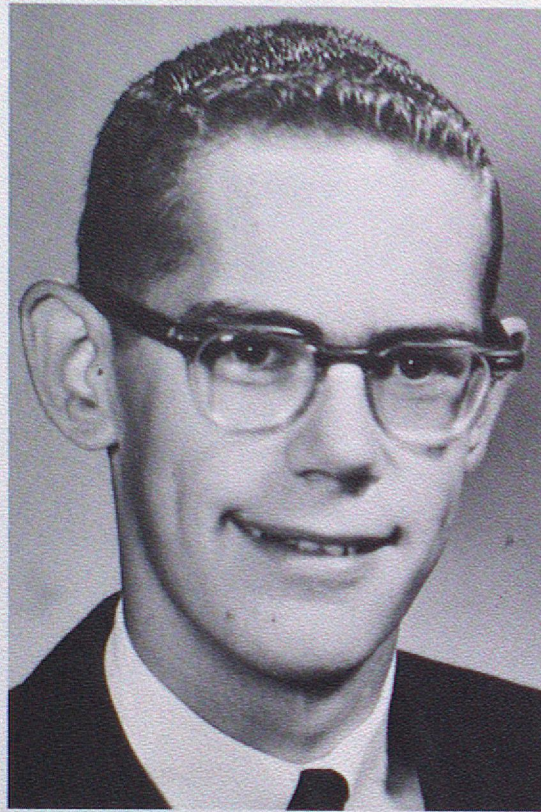

I noticed a quotation from Justice Holmes that was a favorite of a prominent American -----

“If you want to hit a bird on the wing, you must have all your will in a focus. You must not be thinking about yourself, and equally, you must not be thinking about your neighbor; you must be living in your eye on that bird. Every achievement is a bird on the wing.”

Like all sayings that deserve to be repeated it has meaning that reaches out to a very deep truth. Can you use it as a guide for your own purposes? No life can be satisfactory without a good measure of achievement. The greater and more far-reaching the task accomplished, the deeper will be your pleasure in its fruition. This sense of achievement is not incidental to your life but the very roots and trunk upon which you will set out all the branches and foliage of your existence. Your life will not be measured by what you acquire but more truly by what you do. So pick out a worthwhile duck you want to bring down, get some homework in with that gun, and then “LIVE IN YOUR EYE ON THAT BIRD”.

J. T. Thistlethwaite,
Principal of G.C.I.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

In the years ahead of us, after we have left high school, we will often think of the time we spent here. Undoubtedly we will have many pleasant memories of hours spent at study, but most of the incidents which come to mind will concern the time spent outside the classrooms. The students, who have contributed generously of their time and energy to extra curricular activities at this school, have made a significant contribution to all of us.

I wish to thank those who have been leaders and workers in the various student activities in this school. Through your efforts the "new" government has been given a fine start, and is able to function more smoothly. You have made the school year more profitable and pleasant than it would otherwise have been.

The members of the Student Council join me in saying that the task of student government at Glenlawn Collegiate has been a pleasant and rewarding experience.

Mike B. Miller,
President.

Vice-Principal's Message

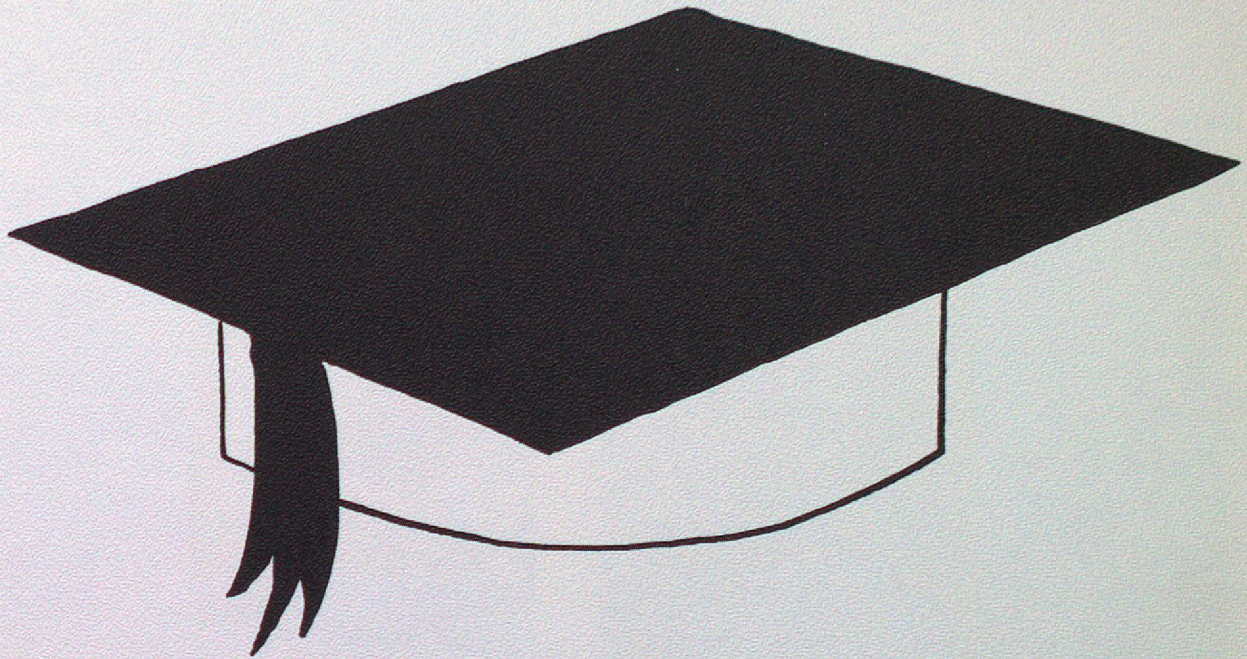

The publication of this annual always impresses me. With each passing year, the job of producing this yearbook becomes more and more burdensome. Yet, with an ambitious crew and a masterful editor, the work is always done on time and done well.

I have no doubt that this year's effort will be the best ever; certainly, it will be the largest ever. I hope that all will spend many pleasant, reminiscent hours thumbing through these pages.

To those leaving the collegiate, I send best wishes for a successful journey through life. To those staying another year or two, best wishes for success at school.

P. Drosdowech,
Vice-Principal.

HOUSE OF TROY

The House of Troy was inaugurated in October, 1962 with Mr. Polz as our adviser. Green and brown were chosen as our colour scheme. Truly, we are living up to our motto "Semper Excelsius", meaning "Ever Upward". The boys won the inter-house soccer championship besides placing second in the last cross-country race in the Fall. In the future we expect to provide stiff competition in all our activities for the other houses.

HOUSE OF OLYMPUS

The development of the House of Olympus is, perhaps, most easily comparable to the growth of a butterfly. At the commencement of the school term, House "B" was a nonentity. This stage coincided with the egg of the caterpillar. With the aid of "Daddy" Poulter we grew.

As the caterpillar must fight fiercely to survive his dormancy in the chrysalis, so the Olympians strove to raise the status of their House. The Executive, mobbed by supporters at the house meetings, managed to subdue them long enough to select the appellation, "House of Olympus", supplemented by the motto, "Dirigimus", the Latin translation of which is "We direct and lead." The pastel blue adorned the House.

From this plateau of many growing pains will emerge the complete and stable "House of Olympus" -- just as a chrysalis reveals its perfect butterfly.

HOUSE OF SPARTA

This year a new tradition has been established at Glenlawn. The house system has been started for the years to come and the beginnings of a long line of Spartans in House "A". With the crest of the warrior helmet and a Greek motto, "Ponon boulomonos ponein" translated, "Work with a will."

Although the Spartans were at times not too successful in sports, we were the first to challenge the other houses with a short noon-hour presentation. This featured a skit on school spirit, an introduction of the Spartans' three Freshie Queens -- two of the past and this year's pretty Carol Scott, and a spirited house song to the tune of "Jingle Bells." We feel that it was a fine effort showing the spirit and enthusiasm of the House of Sparta.

The pace has been set; may the House of Sparta progress and prosper and become a tradition in itself at Glenlawn.

HOUSE OF ATHENS

Social.*

The House of Athens has experienced a very successful term, in this inaugural year of the house system. We have enjoyed the competition with the other houses in regard to the athletic fields, journalism and social events. Our house members have participated enthusiastically in all fields of endeavour.

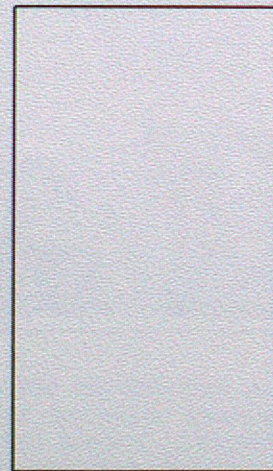

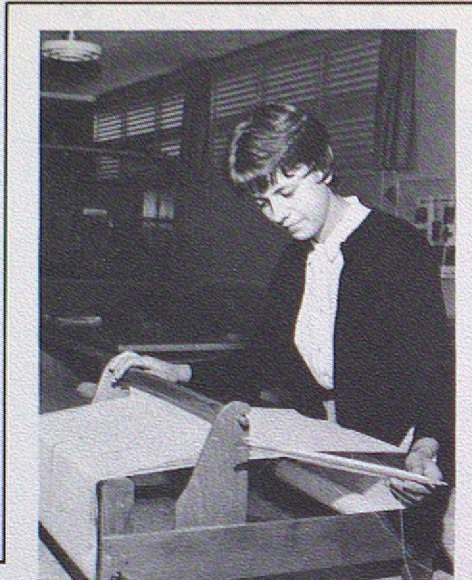

We, the executive of the House of Athens, would like to wish you all well in the future and would like to thank all our house members for their loyal support.

THE CLAUSE CHEER

On glancing through my notes, I find recorded that the night of December 21 of the year 1893 was very eventful in the career of my friend Sherlock Holmes. As nine o'clock approached, Holmes rose from his favorite chair and stood near the door. After a few moments he pulled it open and there, much to his surprise, stood that plump gentleman, Santa Clause, the internationally known toy manufacturer and distributor.

Holmes invited the jolly old gentleman in, only to find he had problems. Holmes introduced me to Clause.

Sherlock said, "My poor Mr. Clause, I am sorry to see that you have lost your reindeer, Cupid."

Clause was astounded. He said, "How did you know?"

"Amazing Holmes, how did you deduce that?" I asked.

"Elementary, my dear Watson, I just counted the deer, there are only seven. Any stupid idiot knows there are eight. I know the missing one is Cupid because the names are on the harnesses and the name 'Cupid' isn't there," explained Holmes.

"Truly amazing," said I.

After Santa Clause had left, Holmes and I went to Scotland Yard to search through some of their criminal files. We looked under "C" and found that Cupid had a police record. He had stolen Rudolph's Red Nose three years before.

After learning this, we took a cab to the Baler Street Station and boarded a train to Dartmoor.

When we reached our destination we went straight to Baskerville Manor. We knocked on the door and there was a rattle of chains and moving of bolts to unlock the door. When it at last opened, there stood Count Dracula. The Count was extremely pleased to see us; he bit us three times each. The poor Count then began to cry.

When we asked why, he said, "It's Fifi you know, the Hound of the Baskervilles, I found him last night on the moor. He was strangled to death by some creature with hard feet."

My friend asked the Count how he knew about the hard feet.

"I saw the tracks you idiot!" came the sharp reply.

The Count invited us to spend the next few days with him.

The next morning when I got downstairs, I saw the Count taking a blood transfusion from Holmes. The poor Count, he can't live without it. I hear that someone slipped him a "Bloody Mary" and he "flipped" as the Americans would say.

After breakfast, Holmes and I went out to the moor. Holmes had taken along his "Little Jiffy Make-Up Kit"; what for I don't know. When we got far enough away from the Manor, Holmes, dressed as Santa Clause, ventured farther into the moor alone. He was gone a very long time. Just as I was about to go and search for him, he returned. I asked why he was gone for such a long time, but he just smiled and said, "Come along, Watson."

When we had finished our dinner and were sitting alone in the great hall, I again asked him.

"I just proved to myself what I thought," he said calmly.

The next morning Holmes and I went out to a small cave on the moor. Holmes had taken a revolver and advised me to do the same. As we reached the cave, we could see Santa Clause and Cupid talking. We managed to get behind them without their knowing, and forced them to "stick 'em up."

"Why, Mr. Holmes! What is the meaning of this?" blurted Clause.

"You're both under arrest," said Holmes to Clause and Cupid.

"I say Holmes," said I. "Whatever for?"

"For the murder of Fifi, the hound!" proclaimed Holmes, "I suspected it all along. Congratulations on a very ingenious plan."

"Why did you suspect them?" I asked.

"Elementary, my dear Watson. Ever since the first paragraph, he has spelled his name C-L-A-U-S-E instead of C-L-A-U-S, which it should be."

"Truly amazing," said I, "but how did you know to come here, and why did Clause come to you for help in the first place if he was in on it?"

"One question at a time, Watson," laughed Holmes. "In the first place, when I looked up Cupid's file in the police records, I saw that he was sent to jail because of what Fifi had said at the trial. When Cupid was taken away he said he would get even with Fifi. The other night in the newspaper, I read that Fifi was missing from Baskerville Manor. I put two and two together and deduced that Cupid had carried out his revenge."

"When Clause came for help, he was just trying to get the suspicion away from himself. Yesterday when I went into the moor, made up as Clause, I learned that the deer and Clause were to meet here in the morning. The deer, thinking I was Clause, told me all this news. Since I wanted to capture both the criminals together, I wrote a note giving the information about the meeting. As I was leaving, I left the note in a place where the criminal, Clause could find it."

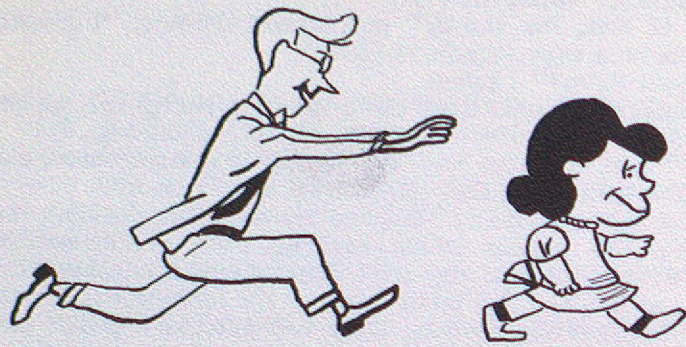

"Amazingly done Holmes," said I, "but why did you take no reward for the capture of those two crooks?"

"Reward?" asked Holmes, "You mean there was a reward offered? Well, why didn't you say so?"

Like a flash Holmes shot out of the apartment and I did not see him again that night.
