Photo Essay

Well here at last is the 1981 Yearbook. Nothing fancy has been done, but the pictures and memories are here. In keeping up with tradition, there are many similarities between the '81 Yearbook and the '80 Yearbook. There also are some differences too. As it is noticeable the name of the Yearbook is not "Paw Prints", as previously used before, but rather "Breaking Away."

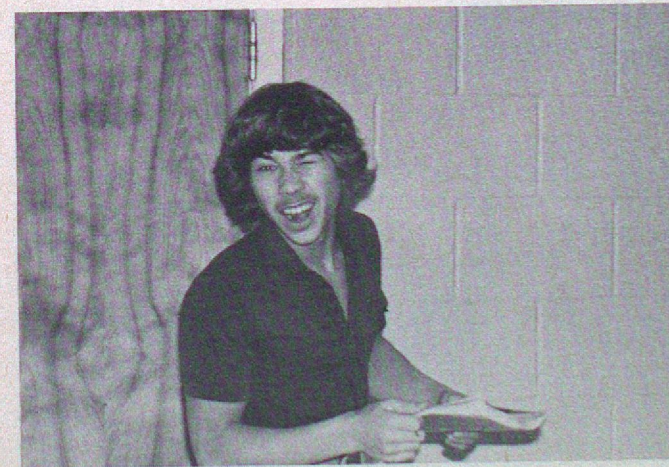

May our memories always be happy ones of the different events that occurred in Glenlawn over the past year.

The Pep rallies, Volleyball games, and other activities allowed us to break away from the school routine for awhile and take time to laugh and enjoy.

For "Life's completeness and richness depends on the things we share with our loved ones and friends".

The title "Breaking Away" perhaps reflects more on the sentiment of the graduating students of Grade 12. For the most part, the graduates are finding themselves out of high school bounds and into new, uncharted territories. But to the whole student body we all, in time, must break away from high school and discover new experiences that may be just around the corner; or for others half way around the world. To all of those students who have found themselves "Breaking Away" from Glenlawn Collegiate, the best to you always. To the future graduates of Glenlawn, Good Luck always in all your endeavours.

Vice-Principal's Message

Vice-Principal's Valedictory

In my first yearbook message I used the quote: "The little dissatisfaction which every artist feels at the completion of a work forms the germ of a new work."

My twenty-three years of service to Glenlawn Collegiate and its student body, fifteen of which as Vice-Principal, have come to an end. In the last few years I have seen students whose parents I had the privilege to teach. Just like the artist, I feel some degree of dissatisfaction on leaving this school in the affairs of which I have devoted nearly half of my life, however, a new challenge must be met.

In my yearbook messages over the years, I had attempted to give of myself and transmit to you values which I hold dear. I had written about the freedom which an education can give you and warned you that "the gates of excellence are surrounded by a sea of sweat". I suggested to you that what is done or left undone in the short-run, eventually determines the long-run. I had spoken to you about your duty and the fulfillment of obligations; I exhorted you to practice discipline, in particular self-discipline, selflessness and loyalty; I asked you to exercise temperance in your actions as well as in your words.

Now that I am writing my farewell to the student body of Glenlawn Collegiate, let me sum up all the themes of the years:

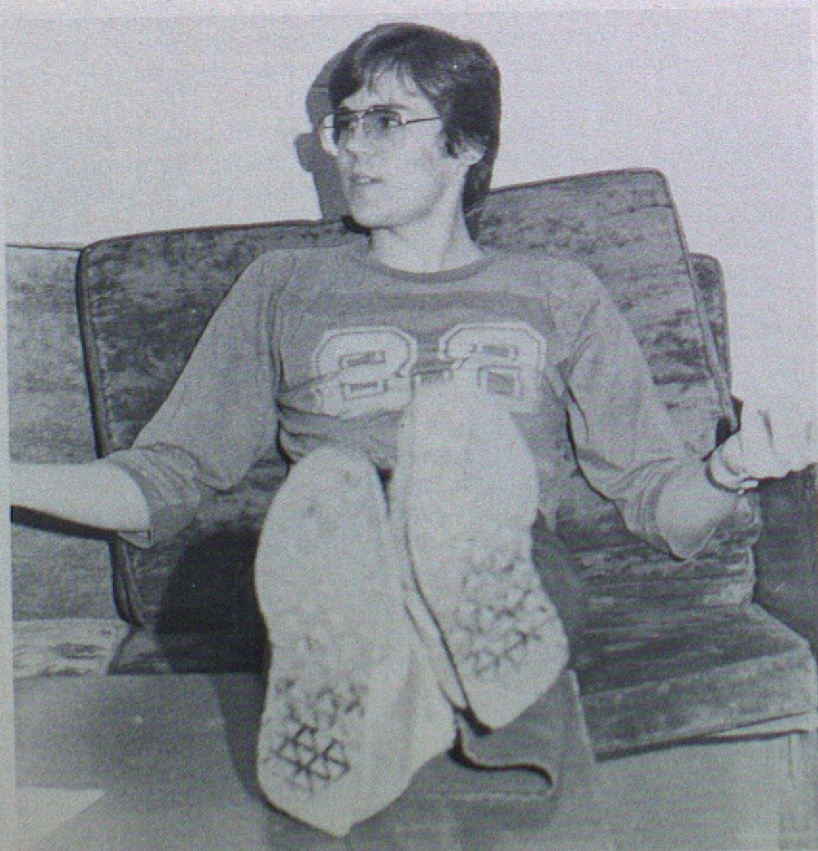

Firstly and foremost, keep your honor as spotless as your appearance. Secondly, since to all of your undertakings you affix your trademark - let your trademark be excellence. Next, whatever obligations you accept - be they in your chosen work, in marriage or friendship - fulfill them meticulously. Practice self-discipline and selflessness - both go together. If you ever must sit in judgment, let me leave with you the advice I received from my father: Audiatur ut altera pars - let the other side be heard as well - and temper justice with mercy. Be loyal to those who can command your loyalty - be they family, friends or employer.

And should you do all these things and, in years to come, work for a man, may God grant you a master who recognizes your worth.

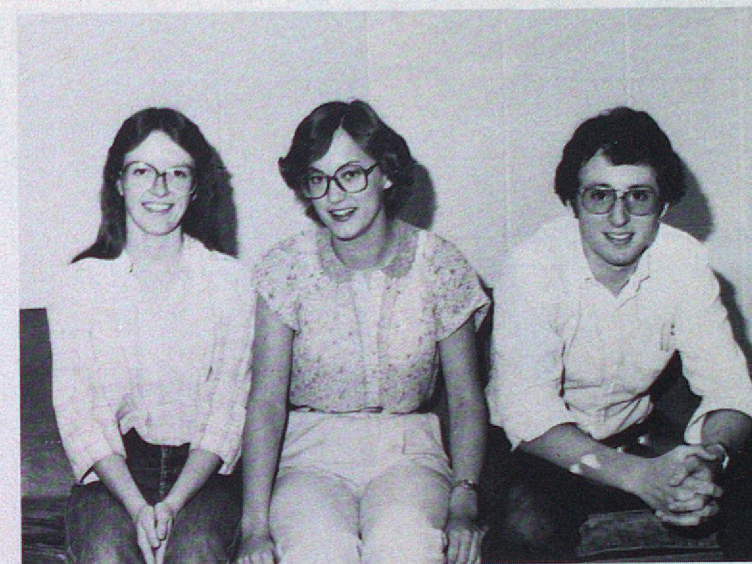

Farewell,
Good Luck,
and God Bless You All

G.W.F. Carsted

Glenlawn's President

Yearbook Staff

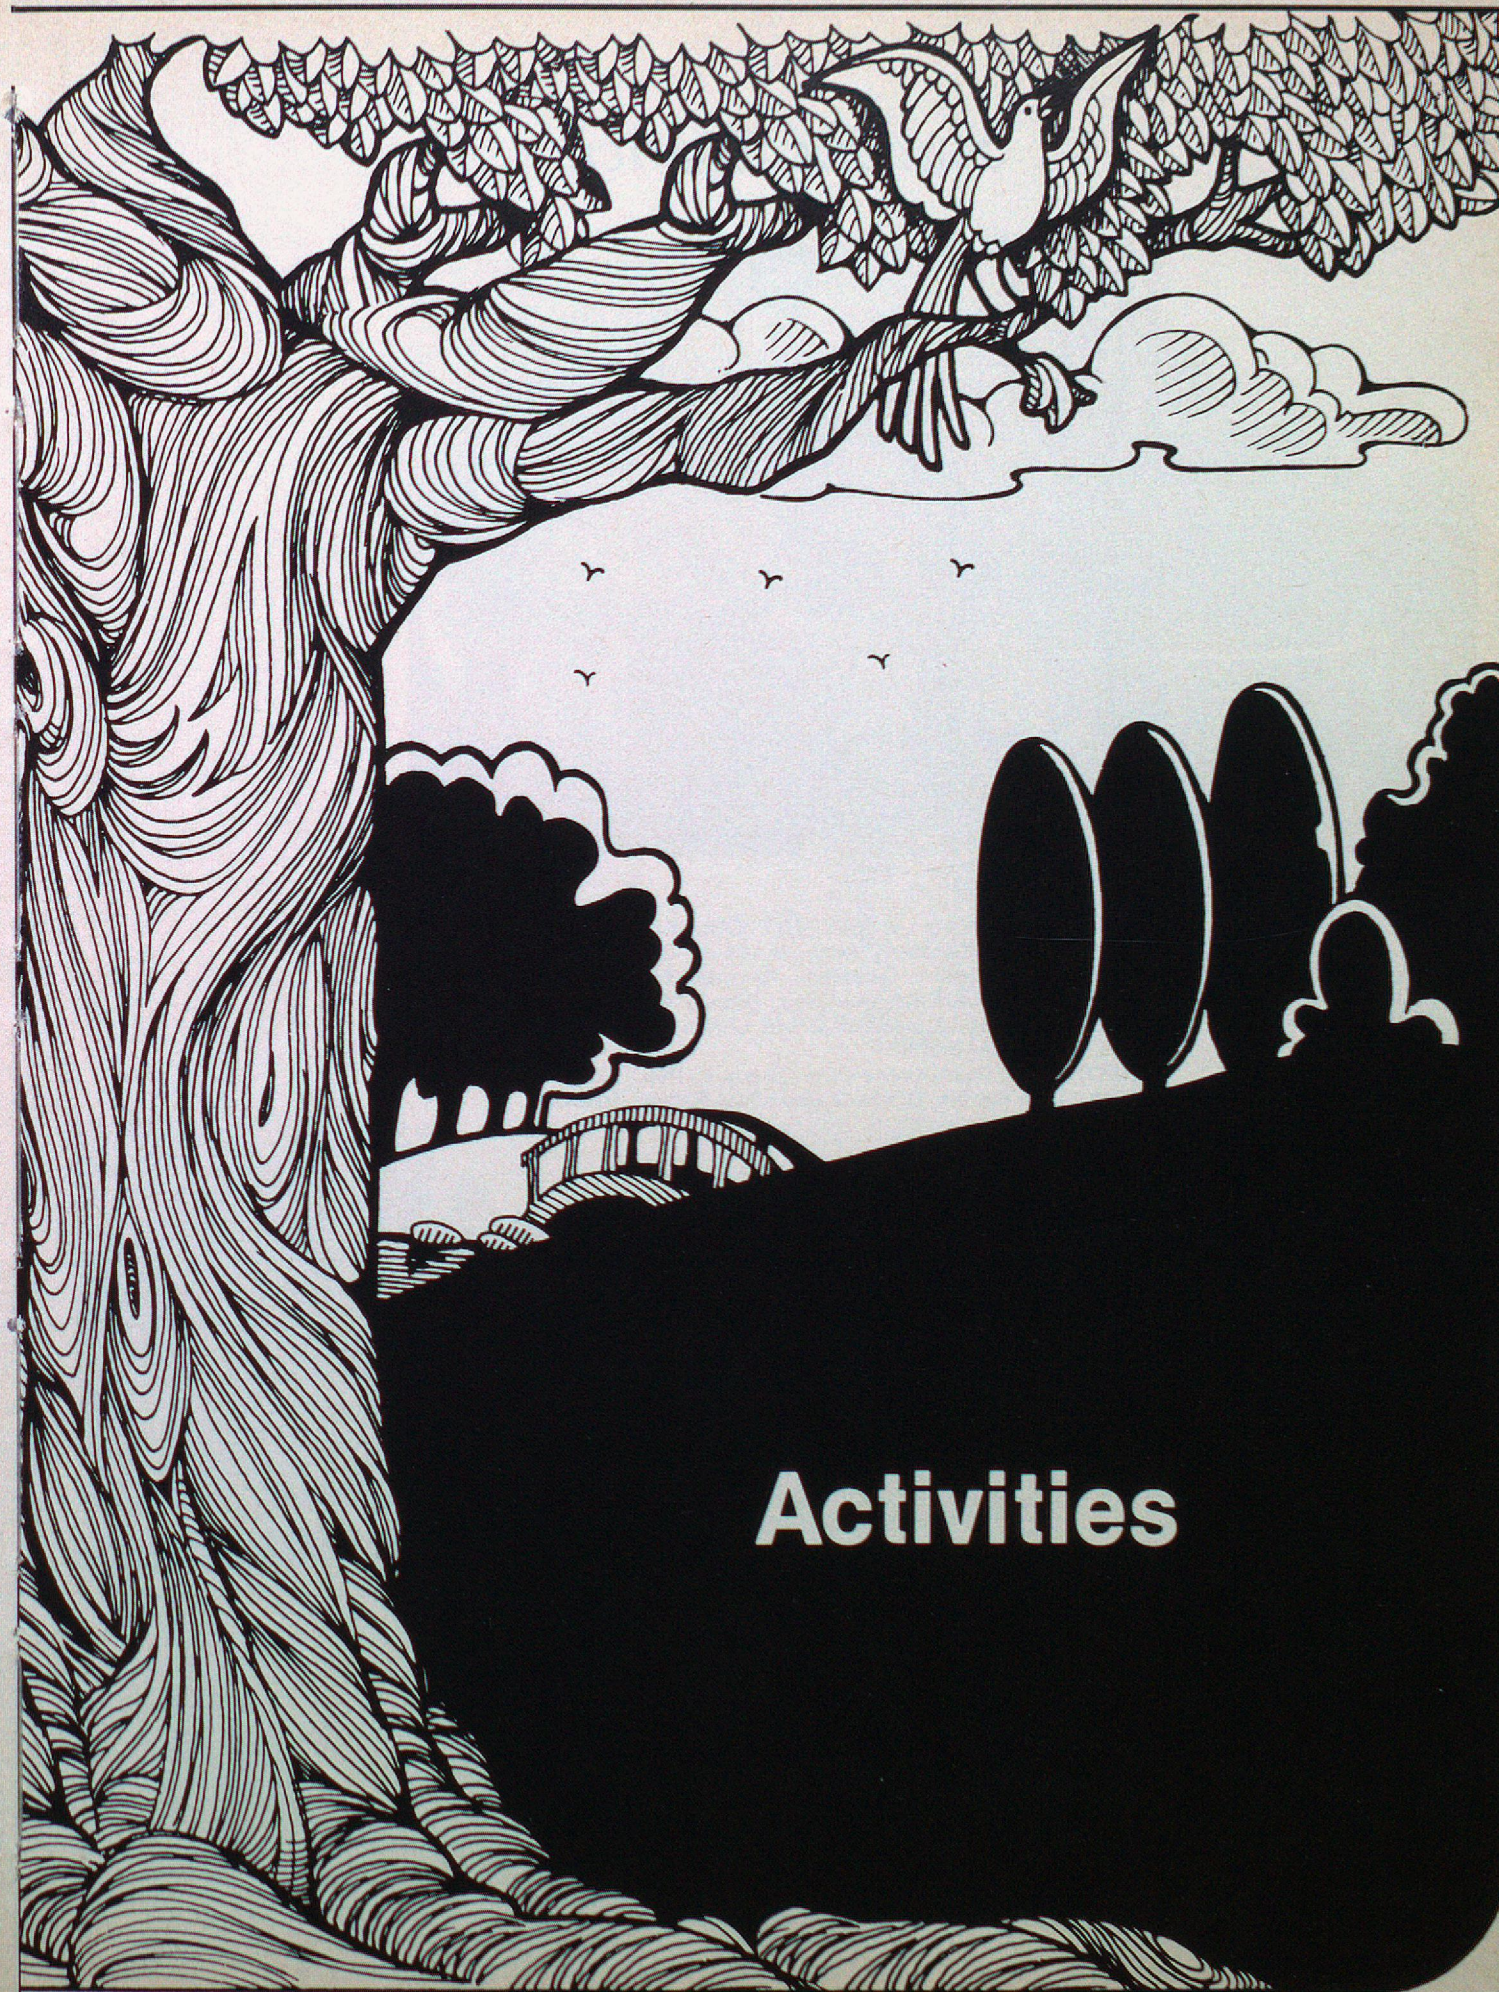

At last I'm done. I guess that really expresses the sentiments I feel. The Yearbook has been a challenge at times, but I did enjoy working with the teachers and especially the Camera Club. Special thanks goes out to the members of the club, for spending so much of their time taking pictures for the Yearbook. Without their help this book could not have been possible. Thanks again, Mr. Sakiyama.

Another big thank-you goes out to Mr. Van Blairicom and his Business Education class for helping to get the much needed Advertising for the Yearbook.

Apologies go out to those people whose names I have spelled incorrectly or have left out. I'm only human. Finishing off I would like to wish Mike Ducharme the best of luck with his Yearbook, I know it's going to be a winner. Yours truly; Brenda Klein, Pauline Campbell (Editors) and Mike Ducharme (Advertising).

Theme Summary

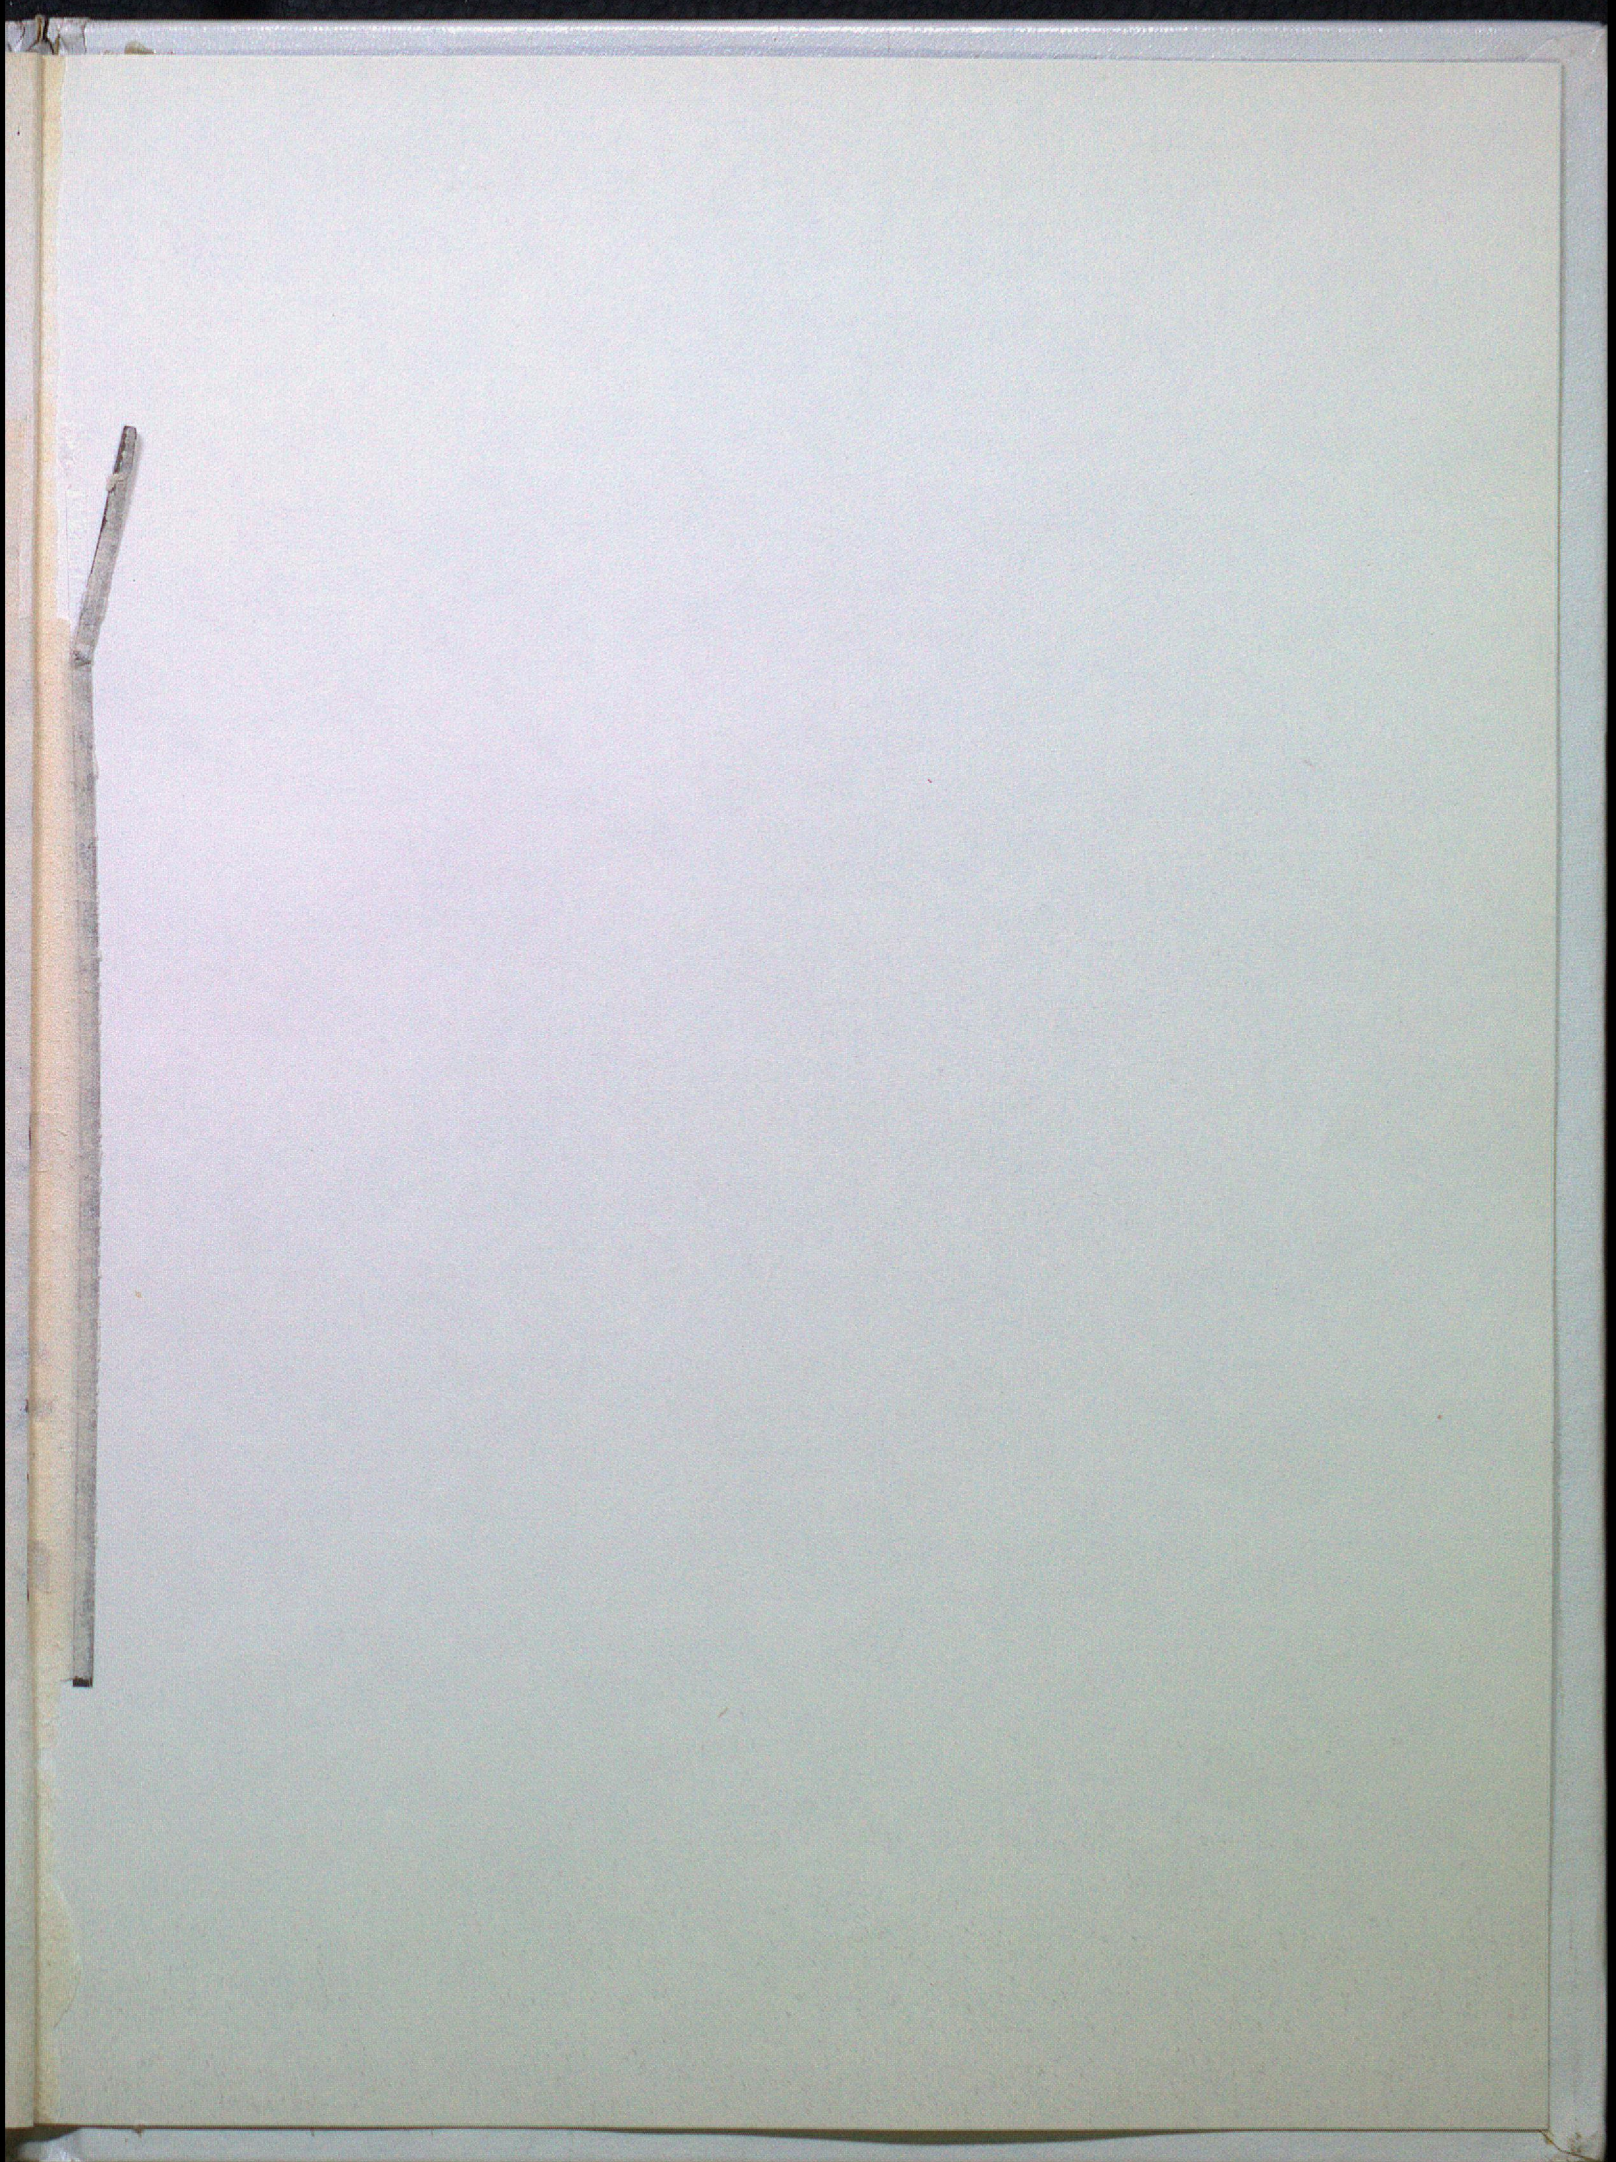

As the Yearbook comes to a close. I can only hope that the Yearbook itself has provided some good enjoyment for all. Here too, the theme "Breaking Away" must close also. It is important to realize that the theme plays an important and significant part in each student's life in a very real sense.

Here too, before I forget, I will apologize for any errors, or omissions with the names of students and organizations, and I would like to thank all who helped with the yearbook. (Especially Mr. Pearce for his pep talks.)

Good luck in the coming year.
